Dear Mr. Helmer:

Godfrey Ridout and I are executors of the estate of the late Kathleen Parlow. I wrote to you at your Toronto address to enquire whether you knew the whereabouts of a bow that was associated with the Stradivarius violin that was in the possession of Miss Parlow. I understand that you borrowed the Stradivarius, with her approval, of course, for some time and since we are unable to find all the bows that Miss Parlow is supposed to have had, we thought you might be able to put us on the track of one or more of them.

I am writing to you because your mother replied to my letter to the effect that so far as she knew, there was no bow associated with the Stradivarius but she agreed that you might be able to give us a line on where to find one or the other of the bows that we cannot locate.

Yours faithfully,
